

The Daily Union Vedette.

TUESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 26, 1864.

The Soldier and the Citizen.

The Copperheads of the country profess to have much solicitude concerning the consequences of discharging half a million of men from the army when the war is ended. The American citizen engaged in the pursuits of civil life readily adapts himself to military service when required by the nation, and as readily lays aside his uniform and as quietly resumes civil life when his services are no longer requisite. Notwithstanding this well known fact, proved by every war in which this country has been engaged, Copperheads enlarge much upon the supposed fearful consequences of turning half a million men out of the army and leaving them without any employment, to prey upon society. We have too much respect for American character to entertain any fear upon this subject, and setting the question of character aside, the history of our citizen soldiers in the wars of the Revolution—of 1812–14, and of Mexico, clearly refutes any such presumption.

The men who form our armies to-day are gathered from every vocation of life. They are not of the mercenary class who offer services where the greatest amount of pay can be obtained—having no interest in the fight and no conviction of principle to prompt the act. Our soldiers are in our armies from motives of principle and patriotism—not for the money they receive—the clothing they wear or the food they eat. A class of soldiers like these will quietly, and without ostentation, return to civil life when the country no-longer requires their services and, speaking in general terms, society will scarcely know when they do it. Within ninety days they will be found engaged in their former vocations, just as though they had never stood on the field of battle amid the crash of musketry and roar of artillery. An evidence of the correctness of our opinion on a small scale has been given in this District during the present month. A large number of soldiers have been discharged. They have gone into civil life quietly and hopefully—creating no excitement and assuming their accustomed pursuits as readily as though they had only rested from them for a single night instead of three years. As it has proved here, so it will prove with all our soldiers throughout the country.

MILITARY COMMISSIONS.—Gov. Low has commissioned the following officers: Geo. D. Kendall, 2d Lieut. Co. I, 7th Inf'y Reg't, C. V.; Jas. H. Shephard, 2d Lt. Co. K, 7th Inf'y, C. V. Also, the following officers of the California State Militia: Edgar Mills, Capt. Sacramento Light Artillery, Fourth Brigade; Wyman Mc-Mitchell, Senior First Lieut., do.; Wm. M. Siddons, Jr. First Lieut., do.; D. W. Earl, Senior Second Lieut., do.; H. W. Bragg, Jr. Second Lieut., do.—Sacramento Union.

Two volunteer companies passed through Stockton, lately, on their way to San Francisco. Some of them had considerable amusement with several inquisitive Copperheads, who were anxious to know the particular business of the soldiers in the city. They informed them they had come to enforce the draft, whereupon the Constitutional Democracy retreated in good order and sought a new base of operations.—Ex.

THE DIFFERENCE.—An exchange commentating upon the various Generals that have become noted on both sides during the present war, argues that at the commencement we started out with our poorest Generals, and the rebels with their best; that every change we have made has been an improvement, and all their changes have placed poorer stock in command.

A sad and distressing accident occurred at the toll house on the Green's Ranch Road, Mariposa county, lately. Rafal Banks and Starnas Zickard were carelessly playing with a loaded pistol, when it went off and the contents entered the lower part of the body of Zickard, inflicting a fatal wound, from which he soon died. He was 24 years of age.—Morganville Appeal.

[SPECIAL TO THE DAILY UNION VEDETTE.]

Cortinas surrenders to Maximilian with his arms and ammunition—Rebels make proposals for the purchase of arms of Cortinas, but he refuses them.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 23d.

The Alliance from Vera Cruz brings the intelligence that Cortinas had submitted to the Emperor Maximilian, and had surrendered all his forces, cannon, arms and ammunition to Gen. Mejia, who holds command under Maximilian. Cortinas accepted a commission in the army of the Emperor as a Brigadier-General.

The rebels for sometime had agents at Matamoras, offering large sums of money to Cortinas for his rifled cannon. He refused to sell to them as they were not only enemies to the United States, but enemies to any form of republican government on this Continent; and if it had not been for the rebels Mexico would not have been invaded by the French.

A large number of Mexican officers arrived in the Alliance to seek an asylum in the United States.

A Dispatch from Sheridan.
CEDAR CREEK, Va., Oct. 21st—4 p. m.

I pursued the enemy to Mount Jackson during the nights of the 19th and 20th, without encountering an organized regiment of his army. From accounts given by prisoners the rout was complete. About 2,000 of the enemy broke and made their way down through the mountains on the left, for 13 miles.

On the line of retreat the road and country is covered with small arms thrown away by the flying rebels. Forty-five pieces of artillery are now at my headquarters, and not less than 300 wagons and ambulances were either captured or destroyed. The accident of the morning turned to our advantage as much as though the whole thing had been planned. The only regret I have, is the capture in the early morning, of 800 to 1,000 of our men. From all that I can learn, the number of Early's reinforcements were not less than 11,000.

Signed: SHERIDAN.

Fire in Eastport, Me.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 23d.

A fire broke out half past one o'clock this morning on the Union wharf at Eastport, consuming all the business part of the town. Loss, $500,000.

Splendid fighting by moonlight—Price's army totally routed and driven four miles over an open Prairie!!!

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 22.

The fight yesterday between the Little Blue and Independence was a very gallant affair. We fought Price's entire army for five hours. McLane's Colorado battery silenced the guns of the rebel battery.

Col. Hoyt made a gallant sabre charge with his battalion. The 15th Kansas 2d Colorado regiment is said to have lost 60 men in killed and wounded. Major Smith in command of the regiment was killed. Our entire loss is reported at 400.

Fagan, Shelby, Marmaduke, Clark and McCrea, and several other Brigadiers are with Price.

Our pickets had a slight skirmish early this morning. Jennison was attacked at Byron's Ford by a heavy column about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The enemy forced the ford and Jennison fell back towards Westport and the State line. Reinforcements were sent to him, and the two commands fought the enemy until after dark, driving him a distance of four miles over an open prairie.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 23d.

A general battle has been fought and a great victory won. Price's army was routed and is retreating rapidly south. Our cavalry are in hot pursuit together with Pleasanton's force numbering 15,000 mounted men. The enemy may strike for Fort Scott, but they will be too closely followed to do much damage. The battle began early this morning. Our volunteers were hotly engaged yesterday, and Col. Jennison at moonlight did some splendid fighting. Our situation last night looked precarious, Price having occupied the line of the Big Blue. This morning our line was formed five miles south of Kansas City on the Westport road. Skirmishing continued for several hours, when the whole force advanced and heavy fighting ensued. The enemy fell back rapidly and formed another line a mile and a half from their first position. Here an artillery engagement took place, the infantry slowly advancing and the enemy falling back. Fighting was kept up for about ten minutes. From this point General Pleasanton then came in on our left, when a grand charge followed resulting in the total rout of the enemy.

When our informant left the front, the pursuit was vigorous by our whole cavalry force. Gen. Blunt commanded the volunteer force on the left, and Deitzler the center and right, which composed the Kansas militia and the 2d Colorado. Col. Ford was in the thickest of the fight, and made several brilliant charges. We cannot ascertain the loss on either side at present.

General News.

St. Louis, Oct. 23d.

It was Fagan's division which had the fight with Blunt on the Little Blue, yesterday. Blunt's object was to detain the rebels as long as possible, and he succeeded with a small force in keeping them employed nearly all day. When they got into a position to flank him, he then retreated to the Big Blue, where Gen. Deitzler with several thousand militia and Curtis with a considerable force of veterans were in position.

Chicago, Oct. 24th.

Leavenworth papers of the 20th say Gen. Blunt, with 2,000 cavalry, entered Lexington on Tuesday. On Wednesday Price attacked him with an overwhelming force. After a short fight he drove him from the city. Blunt fell back to the Little Blue, fighting desperately and retarding the advance of the enemy. On Thursday and Friday skirmishing continued between the Little and Big Blue. Blunt's loss in Wednesday's fight was about fifty.

New York, Oct. 24th.

Herald's Martinsburg correspondent of 22nd, has information from the front which indicates that our losses in the battle on the 19th will reach 5,000 killed, wounded and missing. We also lost early in the morning 24 guns. We captured, including the wounded who are now in our hands, about 7,000 men and 50 guns. The total loss of the enemy cannot, therefore, be much short of 10,000 men. Custar alone has receipts for 45 guns and five battle flags, besides a large number of ambulances, horses, mules, etc. This makes 51 pieces of artillery that his division has captured during the last two weeks. It is now pretty certainly determined that Longstreet was not in the Valley, but that Early was determined to strike a desperate blow for the recovery of his district and his lost reputation, in the absence, as he supposed, of our commanding General and the 6th corps. In this effort he was seconded by Kershaw, whose infantry having been several times defeated by our cavalry, felt that his reputation needed some brightening. Many of the other officers, however, high in command, deemed the effort as rash, and hesitated not to express their opinion that should it fail, it would end the rule of the Confederacy in that section of Va. Kershaw executed the first portion of the programme well, and the whole rebel army fought with greater obstinacy than ever before, as their losses attest. Nothing could withstand the impetuosity of our men.

The Herald's correspondent gives the following concerning our captures at Cedar Creek and the pursuit of the enemy: Devin with his little brigade kept sweeping down upon their rear, gobbling up their officers and men by scores. He pressed them so hard that it was impossible to get their artillery out of his way or their wagons. Ambulance drivers and cannoniers dismounted and ran off into the woods on either side of the road; and the rear guard of the demoralized rebel army—if it had one—followed suit, leaving the whole train in our hands. Limbers, caissons, wagons and ambulances, were all huddled together in the greatest disorder. We followed the enemy up to the base of Fisher's Hill, when Col. Nichols with his gallant 9th N. Y. charged them again and drove them back, leaving a considerable portion of their wagon train in his hands, which he secured. We did not follow up the chase beyond Fisher's Hill. The infantry commands moved up to Cedar Creek and went into their old camps, while the cavalry bivouacked for the night a little beyond Strasburg. At Buckland the slaughtered enemy is immense, and the whole country between Middletown and Strasburg is literally strewn with rebel corpses. At an early hour the next morning the pursuit was continued by Powell's cavalry. He captured fourteen pieces of cannon which the enemy had driven into the mountains. At Woodstock the column halted and rested a short time when it retired toward Strasburg, picking up many prisoners by the way.

The Herald's Washington special says: The option is openly avowed by the highest military authorities here, that Grant can at any time be pleased, with a few hours' fighting, occupy Richmond. The force of Lee will either capitulate or hastily evacuate the rebel Capital. The only reason assigned for the delay, is the desire of the Lieut.-General to obtain the same result without the serious sacrifice of life that would attend the capture of this strong hold, by a direct assault at this time.

HANCOCK'S JAM & JAMBOURY

One of our Volunteers, who recently lost a "hoss," and one that he has not yet found either, could not bear with the sorrow caused by the bereavement of his favorite, "nag," and as an immediate source of consolation he applied to a female of the Swiss persuasion to become his helpmate in this "time of need." It seems (and fortuitously) that this fair one was in a corresponding mood, and having no friend in the immediate vicinity with whom she could consult, she at once crowned the "boss loser" with her heart and hand, and straightway they repaired to the nuptial altar, where she exchanged her "Miss Swiss" to "Miss German." Good-bye "huster and blix-en." But the excitement over the late nuptials and at the sudden transition from singular to plural was too much for the "hoss man." King Alcohol had "clandestinely" gained admission to his quarters, where he lost no time in gaining the supremacy of the "shambang," took immediate possession and caused poor Theodore to be transported to the "Guard House," where he is now enjoying the blissful realities of his "honeymoon."

Companies C and F of the Nev. Ty. Vols. are expected at Camp Douglas to-morrow evening. Company H, 3rd Inf'y, C. V., for the past several months stationed at Camp Connor, are looked for on the same evening. The men of Co. H whose terms have expired, will be immediately mustered out.

Per order of Gen. Conner, Corporal James Ryan and seven men, of Co. G, 3rd Inf'y, C. V., left Camp yesterday as an escort to Mr. Sale, Special Indian Agent, who goes to Fort Mojave to distribute presents among the Indians in that vicinity. The escort took with them rations for forty days.

We would here state that owing to the small amount of pay which officers and soldiers receive from the Government, the VEDETTE is issued to them without any increase in the subscription. All officers and soldiers can subscribe for the VEDETTE upon our former terms.

Yesterday morning the mountains in rear of our Camp were covered with the white habiliments of dreary winter, the air was thoroughly chilled and the clouds hovered o'er and around us with every indication of a cold drizzle—but nary driz.

Our readers will notice by the advertisement of the Fenian Brotherhood that their place of meeting is changed, owing to the Concert in the Theater on Wednesday night.

ENGLAND WILLING TO GIVE UP CANADA.—The London correspondent of the New York Times writes:

"British North America can be had at any time for the asking. Let the Governor of Washington make its claim for the Alabama spoliations, and offer to take Canada and the other Provinces in full if all demands with war as the alternative, and they will be surrendered at once, without a gun being fired."

THE CALIFORNIA REGIMENT.—The new regiment of Infantry called for by Gov. Low, is likely to be recruited without difficulty. Recruiting offices have been opened in most of the larger towns of the interior, and the lists are being rapidly filled up. At the town of Jackson, in Amador county, forty-two volunteers enrolled their names in the short space of seven days after Lieut. Woodruff opened his office to recruit a company.—Sac. Flag.

SENATOR CONNESS addressed a large and enthusiastic Union meeting at Georgetown, El Dorado county, on the evening of the 7th instant. He indignantly denounced the story of dissatisfaction as false, and then paid his respects to his ancient and present foes in a style of complimentary scouting the idea that men holding such opinions as theirs have any claim to be called Democrats.—Nevada Gazette.

HORRIBLE.—Any quantity of cattle may still be seen dead and dying near Monterey. They stagger over the uninviting hills and plains, and should a blade of grass be discovered, death overtakes the skeleton animal that attempts to pluck it, for the force of the blade breaking, capsizes the poor beast, and he is unable to raise again.

"Why does the operation of hanging kill a man?" inquired Dr. Whately. A physiologist replied: "Because inspiration is checked, circulation stopped, and blood suffuses and congests the brain." "Bosh," replied the Doctor; "it is because the rope is not long enough to let his feet touch the ground."

THREE MEN DROWNED.—We were informed yesterday that on Sunday, a week ago, three men were drowned at the forks of the Meklumne river, below Georgiana slough. The bodies were recovered and taken to Antioch for burial. The unfortunate men are said to have been intoxicated when they perished.—Stockton Independent, Oct. 19th.

A man of fashion recently visited the Ames Company's works at Chicopee and was very anxious to see all the machinery. He accosted a workman with a request that he might be directed to the "most striking part of the establishment," and was shown forthwith to the blacksmith shop.

RECRUITING.—Lieutenant Appar is meeting with unexampled success in his efforts to raise a company in this vicinity. He opened his office at the Cosmopolitan Saloon on Tuesday, and has already enrolled the names of twelve good and true men.—Solano Herald.

RECRUITING.—Lieutenant Appar

is meeting with unexampled success in his efforts to raise a company in this vicinity. He opened his office at the Cosmopolitan Saloon on Tuesday, and has already enrolled the names of twelve good and true men.—Solano Herald.
